FAQ: How do I cite multiple sources by the same author in my paper?

Answered By: Jennifer Harris

Each citation style handles this situation a little bit differently! Here are specific examples of how it works in the three major citation styles:

APA Style
Per the APA Manual (6th edition), p. 178:
For In-Text Citations:
Arrange two or more works by the same authors (in the same order) by year of publication. Place in-press citations last. Give the authors' surnames once; for each subsequent work, give only the date.

Training materials are available (Department of Veterans Affairs, 2001, 2003)
Past research (Gogel, 1990, 2008, in press)

Identify works by the same author (or by the same two or more authors in the same author) with the same publication date by the suffixes a, b, c, and so forth, after the year; repeat the year. The suffixes are assigned in the reference list, where these kinds of references are ordered alphabetically by title of the article, chapter, or complete work.)

Keyword Searching

Keywords tell database what to look for

Databases match all words searched to words in item records
• lots of search terms all at once isn’t always better

Choose Key or Important Terms
• leave out connecting words
You Try: Keyword Searching

What is the relationship between cell phone use and anxiety for teenagers?

Which words from our research question make good keywords?

• What
• Is
• the
• relationship
• between

• cell phone use
• and
• Anxiety
• for
• teenagers

Answer this poll in the chat box
What is the relationship between cell phone use and anxiety for teenagers?

When narrowing it can be helpful to ask:
Who? What? Why? When?
Boolean Operators

Boolean Operators tell database how to search for your keywords

Combine keywords using the Boolean operators: and, or, not

- Example Boolean search: After school program AND (Academic Success OR SAT OR Grades) AND Middle School
Brainstorming Alternate Keywords
